WHY CANADA?

The advanced economy of Canada is one of the largest in the world. Being a developed country, Canada has the ninth highest per capita income in the world. In 2011, Canada spent approximately C$29.9 billion on domestic research and development. As of date, the country has produced fourteen Nobel laureates in physics, chemistry and medicine, and was ranked fourth worldwide for scientific research quality in a major 2012 survey of international scientists. It is additionally home to a number of global technology firms. Canada ranks one of the highest in the world for Internet users as a proportion of the population, with over 28.4 million users, equivalent to around 83 percent of its total population.

VANCOUVER

Vancouver is one of the nation's largest industrial centres of Canada. The Port of Vancouver, Canada's largest and most diversified, does trade with over 130 different economies annually. Vancouver is also the headquarters of forest product and mining companies. In recent years, Vancouver has become an increasingly important centre for software development, biotechnology, aerospace, video game development, animation studios and a vibrant television production and film industry.

TORONTO

Toronto is an international centre for business and finance. Generally considered the financial capital of Canada, Toronto has a high concentration of banks and brokerage firms on Bay Street, in the Financial District. The Toronto Stock Exchange is the world's seventh-largest stock exchange by market capitalization. The five largest financial institutions of Canada, collectively known as the Big Five, have national offices in Toronto. The city is an important centre for the media, publishing, telecommunication, information technology and film production industries. Toronto is also a wholesale and distribution point for the industrial sector.

MONTREAL

Montreal has the second-largest economy among Canadian cities. The city is today an important centre of commerce, finance, industry, technology, culture, world affairs and is the headquarters of the Montreal Exchange. Montreal industries include gaming, aerospace, electronic goods, pharmaceuticals, printed goods, software engineering, telecommunications, textile and apparel manufacturing, tobacco and transportation. The service sector is also strong and includes civil, mechanical and process engineering, finance, higher education, and research and development.
